New account analysis statement debuts with October's transactions

We are pleased to share good news with our Commercial Checking Plus and Commercial Checking customers. Your account analysis statements are getting a refreshed look that will make them easier to read. This update also brings changes to the way service charges are debited from your checking account(s). If you currently do not receive an analysis statement and would like to start receiving one, contact your cash management specialist or local banker today.

New analysis statements

We listened to your feedback that analysis statements can be challenging to read. The new statement presents information in an easy-to-follow format. Whether you receive paperless or mailed analysis statements, you'll see the same improvements:

- Statements are now in color.
- Account number and page details print at the top of each page.
- Easy-to-read text with bolded headings help you navigate the statement.
- Every other transaction line is shaded for improved readability.
- Service charge detail is organized with clear subheadings with subtotals. Charts also give you a visual look at your service charge detail.

The first analysis statement you receive with the new design will be statements for October activity. See the enclosed sample for a sneak peek.

Service charge and statement timing

With the new statements, you'll no longer see your analysis fees debited on the last day of the month. Instead, they will be deducted around the 10th of the following month (it may vary by one to two business days each month, based on weekends and holidays).

For example, service charges for activity from October 1-31, 2020 will be calculated and debited from your account on November 10. Also on November 10, your analysis statement will be created and made available to you via the same method they are today (online, printed and mailed, or both). It may take one to two business days for the statement to appear online.

If you have no service charges for the month — due to offset, waiver, or lack of activity — your analysis statement will still follow the new analysis timing as outlined above.

Thank you for the opportunity to partner with your business. If you have a question, please contact a cash management specialist or your local banker for assistance. We look forward to serving you more in the future.

Respectfully,
